5. COMMENTARY

Fed. announcement met everyone's expectations. "NO CHANGE" sent out a clear message. Therefore, our ES kept going up and broke out its major resistance level with relatively low volume yesterday. Today we need to see 1385/1384 level hold up for confirming a true breakout. We have a market divergence which S&P & DOX are in advance and NASDAQ is lagging, and S&P and DOW are in super-super overbought territory. Our market may wait for NASDAQ to catch up and then turn down together after Nov.7.

6. TODAY'S TRADING

ES broke out its major resistance level 1386.75 and closed above it. Today ES could go higher in the morning or gap up at open. Looking for reversal signal after 10:30am. Pullback for testing 1386-1385 should be expected, especially if ES makes a new high in the early morning.

If ES gap down at open, we should expect dip buyers will show up at major support level around 1379/78 range, and push price back up. Yesterday's high is possible.

Caution:

We are in election period. Many charting patterns and indicators suggest the market is on its top, but political considerations may limit any decline. Be cautious in the pre-election period. Normal trading methods may not work.
